TASTING NOTES

NOSE

At first sniff, we immediately notice the distinctive scent of burnt caramel and the rich nuances of pecan or walnut. A hint of green apple (Granny Smith) and the aroma of baked chestnuts complete this inviting range of flavours.

PALATE

The first sip reveals a creamy, spicy and sweet explosion of flavour. The intensity of black pepper, which is defined here not by heat but by flavour, stands out in particular. The well-known "Balcones Funk" note, which is already familiar from our Texas Rye Review, gives this bourbon a unique flavour. Toffee, candied apple and a hint of corn combine to create a full-bodied flavour experience that is accompanied by a subtle influence of high-fructose corn syrup (HFCS).

FINISH

The finish is long-lasting and offers a roasted malt note accompanied by a hint of burnt flavour. The sweetness remains present and dry, giving our whisky a balanced and appealing aftertaste.

THOUGHTS

MARCEL

The Balcones Pot Still Bourbon is a true character, delivering drinking pleasure with its spicy 'Balcones Funk' and sweet, creamy toffee notes. Not necessarily for purists, but a lively experience for anyone looking for something different from the usual bourbon.

SASCHA

With its balanced structure of spicy black pepper, sweet toffee, and a subtle malt roast, the Balcones Pot Still Bourbon demonstrates a successful harmony. The complex aroma lingers for a long time, even though the influence of HFCS slightly distorts the overall impression.
