TASTING NOTES

NOSE

Christmas! Gingerbread, cinnamon and cloves dominate the nosing at first. A hint of honey wine flashes through briefly in places, but is quickly replaced by spices, dried fruit and plums. As if that wasn't enough, cranberries, dried cherries and yes - really - Nutella follow after some time in the glass.

PALATE

We continue our visit to the Christmas market with caramel and the sweet, full-bodied flavour of red fruits and a juicy mango. Roasted almonds and star fruit are not to be missed. Cheekily, there is also a little chilli kick hiding in the corner. The alcohol is wonderfully integrated as an intense flavour carrier.

FINISH

The Glenlossie remains long and warming with bitter dark chocolate and a little aniseed.

THOUGHTS

MARCEL

A Christmas whisky that's a lot of fun and delights with its fruity-sweet surprises like mango and Nutella - the Glenlossie 12 Years from Malts of Scotland brings festive cheer to the glass and makes the cold season feel much warmer.

SASCHA

This bottling impresses with a complex aroma profile featuring a balanced interplay of spices, fruitiness, and a subtle chili kick that keeps the structure exciting; a technically clean Speyside malt with a long, warm finish and excellent cask balance.
