Tamdhu 18 Years

The Tamdhu distillery is committed to both naturalness and the use of Oloroso sherry casks. The 12, 15 and 18-years standards are released at over 46% strength, uncoloured and non-chill-filtered. Today we have the 18-years Tamdhu in our glass.

TASTING NOTES

NOSE

The Tamdhu 18 Years opens with citrus and nutty notes, followed by classic sherry tones and a hint of prunes. An idea of rum balls and sultanas gives it a sweet depth, while the oak spice adds a robust structure. The bouquet is voluminous and massively intense.

PALATE

The first sip reveals the rich fullness of this whisky. A fruity sweetness of red apple dances on the tongue, accompanied by a malty depth and a subtle sweet dryness. The usual sherry notes are present and enhanced by candied apple nuances. The texture is remarkably creamy, but a distinct kick reminds you that this is not a whisky for the faint-hearted. Dark notes of coffee, chocolate and morello cherries add a sensual complexity.

FINISH

The finish is long, warming and slightly burning, carried by a fruity flavour that lingers on the tongue.

THOUGHTS

MARCEL

With its creamy texture and intense sherry aromas, the Tamdhu 18 is a true delight that hits you right in the heart—although the price does put a slight damper on the fun. A dram that's enjoyable, full of character, and occasionally surprises with a cheeky kick.

SASCHA

The Tamdhu 18 impresses with its balanced structure between fruity sweetness and spicy oak notes, yet it doesn't become overly complex. For fans of classic sherry maturation, it's solid, though somewhat pricey relative to the depth it offers.
